

Chamber Ensemble Expands Kids' Concert

Written by

Chamber Music Hilton Head's new educational component is proving popular with Sunday afternoon audiences. Supported by a grant from Arts Council of Beaufort County, KidsPreConcert is intended for students middle school age and older. But the feature has also prompted inquiries from adult listeners. In response, CMHH tweaked the format and will now welcome any and all to these music appreciation sessions. Families attending KidsPreConcert with students are still free to the concert itself, while "unaccompanied" adults to these educational sessions should buy tickets, as usual.

The next Sunday concert will be presented Sunday afternoon, January 31, in Bluffton and the following evening, Monday February 1, on Hilton Head Island the following evening, February 1. It is a program of duets and trios, and in classical styles ranging from Baroque to early 20th century.

The program opens with "Sonata for Flute & Violin." It is a bright, crisp piece in four movements by the Baroque composer, Georg Philip Telemann. Performing are CMHH violinist Asako Kremer, and guest flutist, Cynthia Hopkins. They are, respectively, members of the Charleston and South Carolina Symphony Orchestras.

Chamber Ensemble Expands Kids' Concert

Written by

~~Copyright © 2019 by the author. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or by any information storage and retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publisher.~~